CAROLINE BISHOP & VAVEK GLOGOVIECKI
JUNE 14, 2008

After taking a year to plan, Caroline Bishop and Vavek Glogoviecki finally had their happily ever after during a beautiful Saturday in June. With 70 guests in attendance, the couple ensured that everyone was entertained from start to finish. Creating newspapers with funny stories for their guests to read and serving breakfast food for dinner were just a few of the personal touches that the duo rolled into their day. Adding to the guests' delight was a special surprise from the couple. "I was five months pregnant at my wedding, and Vav and I found out the sex of the baby a few days before," Caroline says. "At the reception we opened a card that said, 'It's a Boy.' When I yelled that into the mic, everyone was cheering." The surprises didn't end there, though. After their honeymoon, Caroline received a call from her dad. "My dad decided last minute that the speech he wrote was too personal to read in public, so he read it to me over the phone that night. It was the most thoughtful gift I've ever received." ☒
